

Details

Dates: On Campus: September 9 and October 21; in Boston, MA: November 5-10, 2022*

Credit Hours: 3

Instructors: Dr. Hannah Allen, Assistant Professor of Health, Exercise Science and Recreation Management

Cost: $2,000 plus tuition

Application Deadline: September 2, 2022

 Itinerary subject to change.*

Students will:

- Attend the 2022 APHA Conference in Boston, MA
- Enjoy four days of presentations, activities, and networking
- Gain knowledge and skills for entry into a post-graduate program in public health, community health, or applied health professions
- Gain cultural experiences at the conference and throughout Boston, MA

Dates/Location

Student will meet September 9 and October 21 in Oxford. The instructor will determine the time and location for the Oxford meetings.

Students will travel to Boston, MA on November 5 and will return as a group on November 10.

Who should go?

This program was developed for students interested in attending the American Public Health Association Annual Meeting & Expo. Public health & health sciences majors should find this program of particular interest as well as students exploring careers in health research, public health departments, healthcare, and health related non-profits.

Costs

The Study USA program fee is $2,000. Included in the program fee are flight, housing, conference registration at the student membership rate*, and one group meal. Excluded from the cost are most meals and personal spending money.

* Students who are not members of APHA will be charged the difference between student member and student non-member registration rates at the time of registration (up to a $225 cost difference).

Travel

Student flights will be booked by the Study USA Office and are included in the Study USA program fee.

THE UNIVERSITY of MISSISSIPPI

Study USA

Visit outreach.olemiss.edu/study_usa for application information